She gave him her book to write in— Her autograph book of blue— And she said, "Write it straight, now, Tommy." And something nice and true— Stiffly and squarely he wrote a line— For his queen with the eyes of blue— Proudly, and signed it, "Tommy." "Maggie, I love you true."

A youth came from a college— A student grave and wise— He looked at the little old autograph book; He looked at the true blue eyes— And he scribbled, with cynical smiling, In the old, old book of blue— Of the folly of love, and signed it "Thomas Reginald Hugh."

A man came from his labors, Learned in the school of years— Gazed at the little blue book and dreamed, And gazed, as he dreamed, through tears. Then he looked and saw her smiling, With tears in her eyes of blue— And he wrote and signed it, "Tommy"— "H. W. Jakeway in October Ladies' Home Journal."

Philadelphia Press: What a huge extravagance it seems to every woman of limited income, when she puts hand to pocket and pays out the sum required for a really good silk undershirt or the material for one. But, then, it is one of those apparent extravagances which repays tenfold.

Yesterday in a little tour of our shops, I entered into the question of winter undershirts. I saw charming affairs in shot silks and stripes from $5 to $20. The higher prices related to imported skirts. I found a very smart French article in dull red color, shot with gold, at $17. It had a half ruffle in the same goods, capped with a narrow flaring in black, which imparted a very chic effect. Two ruffles, mounted in back from the bottom of the skirt to the waist line—a new French scheme toward the proper adjustment of the new and narrow dress skirt. A number of the French petticoats in stripes were tried with heavy flounces of black lace, but the majority simple ruffles of the goods seemed the favorite idea. Even as low as $5 I saw very trim and very excellent skirts.

A raw material for undershirts, which seems to grow in popularity is wool moreen. It can be had in both checks and stripes—dark. These are trimmed with ruffles of their own material or with silk flounces. Silk moreen, which is better still, comes higher. I saw excellent skirts of silk moreen at $8 and $7. Flowered silks are a French novelty noted here and there. Most of these are designed for evening wear—or in any case to accompany house gowns. The floral figuring is large and prominent, when to this are added two half-yard flounces of white or yellow lace and rosettes, or bows of ribbon, it is hard to realize that the fluff creation is to be worn under another skirt. These varieties vary so much in price that, according to the grade of silk and lace, it is difficult to name the prices. All, however, are above the $12 mark. When skirts are on the market at many prices. But these are not articles which one would advise a friend to buy. Unless lined with some clinging material they clog the limbs badly when walking.

I wonder if many women have known the satisfaction which lies in a couple of good seersucker undershirts, with generous ruffling of like material. They are most serviceable for street or office wear, and do not require the constant laundering of a white skirt. As to prices—the shot silk for your silk skirt comes at $1 per yard, and is forty-two inches in width. Wool moreen is at 65 cents a yard. Five yards are required for an ordinary skirt—less if your ruffling be in silk. Seersucker, in pretty stripes, 10 cents a yard.

THE NEW SASH.

They are showing a new sash in the show windows, and it is so attractive that it bids fair to have quite a run of popularity. It consists of two shapes of ribbon sewed together. The ribbon is folded to form plait. It is then carried around the waist and tied in a big bow at the back. From there the ribbon hangs nearly to the bottom of the skirt. In reality the ribbon bows made separate, and the belt looks under the bow. In the front there is a big silver or steel buckle, which is not placed there only for ornament, but it holds the plait in place, and gives a weight and finish to the belt.

Any two harmonizing colors can be combined, and thus one sash can be made to match two dresses. This is only a season novelty, but it is bright and decorative, and the shops are selling plenty of them. Two-faced satin ribbon must be used.

THE INVALID'S BED.

Somebody wonders why only invalids can have comfortably made beds, wisely suggesting that the skill of the trained nurse in this respect is well worth submitting to the chambermaid. She of the hospital cap and apron begins her work by carefully tucking the first sheet neatly and firmly about the mattress, which it is intended to cover snugly. To insure this result the corners are folded over and under, as a tradesman folds in the edges of the wrapping paper around his parcel.

The second sheet comes well up to the head of the bed, to insure sufficient margin to be turned back over the other clothes, and it and the blankets and counterpane are turned in well at the foot in the same folded-under-way, while the sides are tucked under very tightly.

The nurse bedmaker never puts her double blankets on folded edge uppermost, as many maddo do, thereby making it impossible to throw off one thickness. If desired, not down at all, but that other sin of the careless bedmaker, pull the second sheet so far up that five minutes' occupancy of the bed brings it away from the foot entirely.

RATS IN WOMEN'S HAIR.

Rats! Beautiful golden rats. Lovely fawn-colored rats, white rats and black rats, auburn red rats, chestnut brown rats, mink-colored rats, sober gray rats, and locks neatly turned hold them in. Rate more envied in color and size and greater in also than ever followed the Pied Piper of Hamelin. Not in cellar, not in garret, nor yet in tenement house, but caught in "woman's crowning glory," in her hair. For what feminine follower of fashion does not know, at this stage of the season, that the pads over which she must puff her hair this fall go by the unattractive pseudonym of rats?

Plain hairdressing is quite as out of date as grass cloth. Women are growing weary of severe styles in everything. A complete evolution seems to have taken place in everything feminine, and each new article of wear or mode of garb is best described by the word elaborate.

The collar is no exception to the general rule. For evening wear in particular the diameter of the head is so full of chromatic successions, that is absolutely unplayable in a common piano. Beethoven used every known trick that the piano of his day could accomplish. On the Stutz & Bauer piano Beethoven's music can be played as it should be, the fullness of the tone, the power to hold the notes as long as the finger is held down, and the distinction of the bass notes one from the other—all render it most practicable and enjoyable on one of these pianos. We are only too glad to show this piano to all callers.

PIANOS, ETC.

Beethoven's Music

when dressed will measure nearly double its natural size.

Postiches (which sounds more agreeable than "false hair") will be worn abundantly in the shape of additional rolls and ringlets.

According to the hairdresser, women who have merely ordinary heads of hair are more fortunate than those who have great quantities, despite the fact that much hair is the bane. This is accounted for in this way: A little hair can be rolled beautifully over hair or wire puffs, while thick hair does not allow puff insertions, but must be wound in over itself, and is more apt to bungle than if it were artificially puffed.

MAKING A POULTICE.

The making of poultices and plasters is part of the duties of a professional nurse in which every household ought to excel. There are many emergencies in which the proper use of mustard might break up a cold and prevent a serious illness, but often it is so carelessly made and applied that its efficacy is destroyed. The mustard leaves of the drug store are convenient, but no better than a home-made plaster, which can be prepared at a moment's notice if a stock of old cotton and linen always be kept on hand.

A mustard plaster means boiling water poured over powdered English mustard until a rather thick paste is formed. In many cases the mustard is mixed one-third of its quantity of flour, and for an infant the proportions should be half and half.

Spread the mustard paste thin and hot on a thick piece of cotton, and cover with a thin piece of old linen. Lay a piece of oiled silk or rubber over the outside of the plaster, after applying it, to keep the heat and prevent the dampness of it penetrating the clothing. The moment the irritation becomes sufficient, or when the time the doctor has ordered the application has elapsed, remove the plaster and cover the irritated skin with cotton wadding to keep the cold air from striking it.

A flaxseed poultice, often ordered by physicians for various purposes, is made by pouring boiling water over flaxseed and stewing the mixture until it is a thick paste. Spread it about an inch thick on a heavy cotton cloth, and cover it with thin old linen, rubbing the surface of the linen with sweet oil to prevent the poultice sticking. Renew the poultice as often as it grows cold, as long as the patient remains awake. Do not disturb a sleeper to do this unless so ordered by a physician.

EFFICACIOUS ELM.

When a slippery elm poultice is ordered, pour boiling water over powdered slippery elm until it can be stirred to a thick paste. Spread it as directed above. Add a little powdered charcoal if needed.

Always remember that all poultices must be applied very hot and frequently changed to be of any value. They lose power when they become cold. A fresh one should be made for each application.

These directions are given for the benefit of young, inexperienced housekeepers, who are sometimes called upon to do a nurse's duty with no idea of the simple art of the poultices and plasters.

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN.

Husks taken from green corn may be torn in narrow strips, dried and used to stuff verana or hammock pillows.

A stationary wire soap dish attached to the side of the scrubbing pail will prevent bits of soap wasting in the water.

Some heavy unbleached muslin should always be placed over the flour barrel, under the lid, to keep out dust and insects.

Soft soap made from half a pound of hard soap and two quarts of boiling water is more economical for laundry purposes than ordinary washing soap.

The yolks of eggs dry almost as soon as they come in contact with the air, but if dropped at once into a cup of cold water will keep in good condition in the refrigerator for three or four days.

Grand Duchess Olga, the little daughter of the Czar of Russia, is said to be the richest baby in the world. The week she was born $5,000,000, invested in English and French securities was settled upon her.

The Archduchess Maria Theresa of Austria is one of the strongest women in the world, and is said to be capable of lifting a man in the air with one hand. She is fond of athletics and is a great cyclist.

The Baroness Burdett-Coutts has the absolute disposal of her property, with the exception of her share of Coutts' banking house. This large slice of her fortune will ultimately pass to her nephew, Mr. Money.

The prettiest cache corsets are of white batiste with lace insertion. They are in the shape of bolero jackets without epaulets. A runner around the top keeps the airy garment trim and taut. Other pretty corsets are in fashu form, cut in one piece and tying in front.

Mrs. Caroline Morse runs the custom house elevator in San Francisco, Cal. She is the widow of a sailor and she cares for and educates her family by means of her work. She was appointed under ex-President Harrison's administration and was deposed under Cleveland's first term, but San Francisco demanded her reinstatement at once.

The fastidious woman usually scorns imitation lace, but there is now offered in the shops the latest quality of imitation Valenciennes, so much like real lace it is difficult for even the expert to detect the difference. The lace is not cheap, but it wears and launders splendidly, withstanding the harsh treatment of the careless laundress and is a thing of beauty so long as a thread of it remains.

STATE SHEEP BREEDERS

And Wool Growers Association Hold an Interesting Session at Martinsburg.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer. MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 13.—The state sheep breeders and wool growers association met in annual session here to-day and adjourned after an interesting session to meet with the state horticultural society at some point in Greenbrier county, next year. Both of the organizations re-elected the old officers, and each added a score or more of vice presidents.

The resolutions adopted were in praise of the management of the agricultural department of the university, and of the action of the board of agriculture in electing an institute director. Governor Atkinson is also called upon to appoint some good practical farmer on the board of regents of the university to place of Prof. R. C. Atkinson, who contemplates resigning on account of his professorship, and who was the only farmer on the board. M. V. Brown and P. C. Eastham, are mentioned as satisfactory men.

All phases on the sheep question were thoroughly discussed. The census of opinion was that sheep raising was profitable, particularly in West Virginia, when properly conducted, and that we should produce all the necessary wool in this country instead of buying it abroad.

Baptist General Association.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer. HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Oct. 13.—The Baptist general association of West Virginia, met here this afternoon and was called to order at 2 o'clock by Dr. W. P. Walker, senior vice president. After devotional exercises Dr. P. B. Reynolds, of the state university, was re-elected president and Rev. R. R. Sadler, of the Baptist Banner, was re-elected clerk.

Rev. E. E. Williams, of Bridgeport, preached the annual sermon at 8 o'clock this evening. Among the distinguished dignitaries from abroad are noted Hon. J. Taylor Elyson, of Virginia, and Dr. Dickson, editor of the Religious Herald, Richmond, Va. Other prominent gentlemen are expected to arrive to-morrow morning.

The attendance of ministers from the state is very large. There will be near 200 present when all arrive.

WHAT IS YOUR TRADE?

Each Trade or Occupation Has Its Special Disease.

It is well known among medical men that certain diseases are more readily developed in certain occupations than in others. That each occupation has its attendant physical weakness. Engineers, railroad men and similar occupations suffer mostly from kidney troubles, and men who are often exposed to the weather suffer from rheumatism, while clerks and professional men, in fact the army of people whose business keeps them indoors, are often times greater sufferers from piles and constipation. In this connection the following letter is of interest to people whose occupation will not allow sufficient outdoor exercise.

Mr. A. F. Calhoun, notary public and jeweler and watchmaker, of Circleville, W. Va., writes as follows: "I had been a sufferer from piles for years, and had tried many remedies with but little benefit, when about three years ago I saw the Pyramid Pile Cure advertised, and sent for it."

I was badly afflicted when I got it, but after only two applications the piles disappeared, and from that day to this I have never felt a symptom of the disease.

I feel that I cannot recommend them too highly to sufferers from piles. The Pyramid Pile Cure is free from cocaine, opium or any mineral poison, absolutely safe, pleasant and harmless; sold by druggists at 50 cents per package. If there is any constipation the Pyramid Pile Cure should be used with the pile cure. The pills are 25 cents per package.

Any druggist will tell you that the Pyramid is the best known and most successful and popular pile cure ever placed on the market, and its reputation as a safe and radical cure has only resulted from the personal recommendation of people who have been cured of this distressing ailment.

Send to the Pyramid Co., Albion, Mich., for valuable little book on cause and cure of piles.

GOT ENOUGH.

Parkersburg Man's Experience in the Alaskan Gold Fields.

Parkersburg State Journal: Charles Swearingen, one of the Parkersburg argonauts, returned this morning from St. Michaels, Alaska.

He has been traveling continuously for the last seventy days and has covered the moderate distance of 15,000 miles. To say that he is glad to get home is putting it mildly. And to say that his many friends are glad to see him back safe and sound, is also putting it mildly.

Mr. Swearingen decided to return home in about an hour's time and this decision was reached after sitting up the situation at St. Michaels. Because of until then unforeseen delays and hindrances, it was found impossible to get up the Yukon this winter. Cold weather was setting in, and it was impossible to get a boat. Then, too, it was impossible to winter at St. Michaels because of the lack of facilities there. He says everybody who can, will return to Sitka or the states this winter.

He left the Camden boys at St. Michaels, but they were then about deciding to return. He confidently believes they are now enroute to this country, or at least bound for Sitka. He says explorers will have hard times getting back from St. Michaels because of the scarcity of coal. The last boat for this country, has left there. He predicts that the United States revenue cutter will yet have to bring some of the people away. When asked if he would try it again next spring, Mr. Swearingen answered "no."

A NEW DISCOVERY BY THE SHAKERS

For more than a hundred years the Mount Lebanon Shakers have studied the cultivation of medicinal plants and sought to extract from them their healing essences. Their labor has not been spent in vain. They have made a discovery that will prove a blessing to mankind. It consists of a cordial that causes immediate relief in cases of indigestion. The importance of this discovery will be apparent when we realize that nearly nine-tenths of our suffering are caused by dyspepsia or indigestion. Nearly every person you meet has this digestive trouble in some of its varied forms—sick headache, distress after eating, pain and fullness in the chest after eating, palpitation of the heart, etc., are but symptoms of indigestion. To relieve these sufferings has been the study of the Shakers, and they have succeeded. The reason the Shaker Digestive Cordial has such an immediate and salutary effect is that it causes the food eaten to be digested, for it is undigested food that causes the distress. The Cordial causes the food to be digested before there is time for it to ferment and sour on the stomach. When the food is digested it is not a burden on the system, but the body makes one feel bright and cheerful, and makes one gain in flesh.

The Digestive Cordial is so prompt in its action that the very first dose will have a perceptibly favorable result. It gives immediate relief.

Every druggist has been sent a supply of our handsome Dandy Fuzzle Books, and a copy may be had for the asking. It tells all about the Cordial as well as Laxol, the new castor oil.

Try a twenty-five cent bottle of Digestive Cordial and see what it will do for you.

J. M. THIRSWEND, of Groesbeck, Tex., says that when he has a spell of indigestion, and feels bad and sluggish, he takes two of DeWitt's Little Early Risers at night, and he is all right the next morning. Many thousands of others do the same thing. Do you? Charles R. Goetze, Market and Twelfth streets; Chatham Sinclair, Forty-sixth and Jacob streets; A. E. Scheele, No. 607 Main street; Exley Bros, Penn and Zane streets; Bowie & Co., Bridgeport.
